Falling for Fall

by Ben Rominske, minister

Maybe you saw the changes in aisles at the store to pumpkins, leaves, and the like. Maybe you noticed the trees getting ready to change or saw on your calendar that the first day of fall has passed. Whatever it was, it is that time of year! I have been aware and preparing as I know Abby loves the fall. It is quite understandable with cooler temperatures, beautiful colors, as well as fairs and sporting events.

Many in our society today love fall themed foods and drinks like pumpkin spiced coffee, hot apple cider. People also like to go on hayrides, pick pumpkins, and go through corn mazes. I recall the not so fun part of raking leaves from underneath the many trees in our yard only to get to jump into massive piles, pretending to swim in it, tunnel, or surface like a submarine. Whether it be the activities, the food, or fond memories, we often are falling for fall.

As fun as that can be, what about fallout falling in our faith? We can talk at length about falling down and getting back, saying things like “It doesn’t matter how hard you fall but how you get back up again.” Falling causes injury in both a physical and spiritual sense. Yet I think there is enough talk and thought on falling and getting back up. Instead what about reason and motivation to not only walk carefully to avoid falling but also the strength to get back up after the hardest of hits?

Mark 5:22-23 says, “Then came one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name, and seeing him, he fell at his feet and implored him earnestly, saying, “My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well and live.” Have we fallen at the feet of Christ like Jarius and many others did? Have you discerned for yourself, His superiority, His glory with respect to our unworthiness?

When I have fallen for Christ it is not just my problems that I have laid before Him but my life, my heart. I want to live at His feet, gleaning the wisdom from His words. I will walk carefully because I want to keep close to Him. I bring my problems to Him first and quickly because I am near Him. I am not claiming doing so will be easy, in fact we are told the Christian life will be far from that but where else except heaven would we want to be? As season comes and goes let us be people who have fallen at the feet of the Lord.
